UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

WINONA L.C.,

Plaintiff,

v.

ANDREW M. SAUL,
COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY,

Defendant.

No. 2:19-cv-00242-SMJ

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT AND GRANTING COMMISSIONER'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Plaintiff Winona L.C. appeals the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) denial of her application for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits. She alleges the ALJ (1) improperly evaluated the opinions of a psychologist, a nurse practitioner, and a licensed social worker, and (2) erred in discounting Plaintiff's own subjective symptom testimony. The Commissioner of Social Security ("Commissioner") asks the Court to affirm the ALJ's decision. Before the Court, without oral argument, are the parties' cross-motions for summary judgment, ECF Nos. 11, 12. Upon reviewing the administrative record, the parties' briefs, and the relevant authority, the Court is fully informed. For the reasons set forth below, the Court finds the ALJ did not err in evaluating the medical opinion evidence or Plaintiff's symptom

AND GRANTING COMMISSIONER'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT – 1

1 testimony. Accordingly, the Court denies Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment 2 and grants the Commissioner's motion for summary judgment.

3 BACKGROUND¹

4 Plaintiff applied for benefits on February 9, 2017, alleging disability with an 5 onset date of January 1, 1994, though she later amended the alleged onset date to 6 December 16, 2016. AR 185–90, 15.² The Commissioner denied Plaintiff's 7 application on March 20, 2017, see AR 86–89, and denied it again on 8 reconsideration, see AR 93. At Plaintiff's request, a hearing was held before ALJ 9 Donna Walker. AR 33–59. The ALJ denied Plaintiff benefits on July 26, 2018.
10 AR 12–32. The Appeals Council denied Plaintiff's request for review on May 17, 11 2019. AR 1–6. Plaintiff then appealed to this Court under 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). ECF 12 No. 1.

13 DISABILITY DETERMINATION

14 A “disability” is defined as the “inability to engage in any substantial gainful 15 activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment 16 which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to 17

18 ¹ The facts, thoroughly stated in the record and the parties' briefs, are only briefly 19 summarized here.

numbers to avoid confusion.

1 last for a continuous period of not less than twelve months.” 42 U.S.C.
2 §§ 423(d)(1)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(A). The decision-maker uses a five-step sequential 3 evaluation process to determine whether a claimant is disabled. 20 C.F.R.
4 §§ 404.1520, 416.920.

5 Step one assesses whether the claimant is engaged in substantial gainful 6 activities. If he is, benefits are denied. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(b), 416.920(b). If he 7 is not, the decision-maker proceeds to step two.

8 Step two assesses whether the claimant has a medically severe impairment or 9 combination of impairments. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(c), 416.920(c). If the claimant 10 does not, the disability claim is denied. If the claimant does, the evaluation proceeds 11 to the third step.

12 Step three compares the claimant’s impairment with a number of listed 13 impairments acknowledged by the Commissioner to be so severe as to preclude 14 substantial gainful activity. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(d), 404 Subpt. P App. 1, 15 416.920(d). If the impairment meets or equals one of the listed impairments, the 16 claimant is conclusively presumed to be disabled. If the impairment does not, the 17 evaluation proceeds to the fourth step.

18 Step four assesses whether the impairment prevents the claimant from 19 performing work he has performed in the past by examining the claimant’s residual 20 functional capacity, or RFC. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(e), 416.920(e). If the claimant

1 is able to perform his previous work, he is not disabled. If the claimant cannot 2 perform this work, the evaluation proceeds to the fifth step.

3 Step five, the final step, assesses whether the claimant can perform other 4 work in the national economy in view of his age, education, and work experience.
5 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(f), 416.920(f); see Bowen v. Yuckert, 482 U.S. 137 (1987).
6 If the claimant can, the disability claim is denied. If the claimant cannot, the 7 disability claim is granted.

8 The burden of proof shifts during this sequential disability analysis. The 9 claimant has the initial burden of establishing a prima facie case of entitlement to 10 disability benefits. Rhinehart v. Finch, 438 F.2d 920, 921 (9th Cir. 1971). The 11 burden then shifts to the Commissioner to show (1) the claimant can perform other 12 substantial gainful activity, and (2) that a “significant number of jobs exist in the 13 national economy,” which the claimant can perform. Kail v. Heckler, 722 14 F.2d 1496, 1498 (9th Cir. 1984). A claimant is disabled only if his impairments are 15 of such severity that he is not only unable to do his previous work but cannot, 16 considering his age, education, and work experiences, engage in any other 17 substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy. 42 U.S.C.
18 §§ 423(d)(2)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(B).

19 ALJ FINDINGS

20 At step one, the ALJ found Plaintiff had not engaged in substantial gainful

1 activity since the application date. AR 17.

2 At step two, the ALJ found that Plaintiff had several medically determinable 3 severe impairments: trochanteric bursitis of the bilateral hips; minor degenerative 4 changes of the left knee; trapezius strain/mild impingement of the left shoulder; 5 moderate persistent asthma, exercise-induced, without complication; tobacco abuse 6 disorder; morbid obesity; major depressive disorder; generalized anxiety disorder; 7 personality disorder with antisocial and borderline features; and post-traumatic 8 stress disorder. Id. The ALJ found Plaintiff's borderline intellectual functioning; 9 acute cholecystitis; polyuria; upper respiratory infection; and carpal tunnel were not 10 severe impairments. AR 17–18.

11 At step three, the ALJ found that Plaintiff did not have an impairment or 12 combination of impairments that met or medically equaled the severity of a listed 13 impairment. AR 18.

14 At step four, the ALJ found that Plaintiff had an RFC sufficient to perform a 15 restricted range of light work as defined in 20 C.F.R. § 416.967 (b) with the 16 following limitations:

17 [Plaintiff] can frequently stoop (i.e., bend at the waist) kneel, or crouch 18 (i.e., bend at the knees); she can occasionally climb ramps or stairs; she 19 can never crawl or climb ladders, ropes or scaffolds; she can frequently 20 reach overhead with the left upper extremity; should avoid concentrated exposure to extreme cold, vibration, and hazards (such as dangerous machinery or unprotected heights); she can understand, remember, and apply information that is simple and routine; she can work in proximity

1 to, but not close cooperation with, co-workers and supervisors; she 2 should work in an environment where contact with the public is not 3 required; she has the ability, with legally required breaks, to focus 4 attention on work activities and stay on task at a sustained rate; she can 5 complete tasks in a timely manner, sustain an ordinary routine, 6 regularly attend work, and work a full day without needing more than 7 the allotted number or length of rest periods; and has the ability to 8 respond appropriately, distinguish between acceptable and 9 unacceptable work performance, and be aware of normal hazards and 10 take appropriate precautions.

11 AR 18–19.

12 In reaching this determination, the ALJ gave great weight to the opinions of 13 Jay Toews, M.D., Carol Moore, Ph.D., Eugene Kester, M.D., and Robert Hander, 14 M.D. AR 24–25. The ALJ gave little weight to the opinions of John Arnold, 15 Ph.D., Jennifer Brumley, a licensed social worker, and Melody Bremis, ARNP. Id.
16 at 25–26.

17 At step five, the ALJ found Plaintiff had no past relevant work history, but in 18 view of her RFC, age, education, and work experience could be expected to perform 19 work as a small parts assembler, food sorter, or bottle packer/caser, each of which 20 existed in substantial number in the national economy. AR 24.

17 STANDARD OF REVIEW

18 The Court must uphold an ALJ’s determination that a claimant is not disabled 19 if the ALJ applied the proper legal standards and there is substantial evidence in the 20 record, considered as a whole, to support the ALJ’s decision. Molina v. Astrue, 674

1 F.3d 1104, 1110 (9th Cir. 2012) (citing Stone v. Heckler, 761 F.2d 530, 531 (9th 2 Cir. 1985)). “Substantial evidence ‘means such relevant evidence as a reasonable 3 mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion.’” Id. at 1110 (quoting 4 Valentine v. Comm’r Soc. Sec. Admin., 574 F.3d 685, 690 (9th Cir. 2009)). This 5 must be more than a mere scintilla but may be less than a preponderance. Id.
6 at 1110–11 (citation omitted). If the evidence supports more than one rational 7 interpretation, the Court must uphold an ALJ’s decision if it is supported by 8 inferences reasonably drawn from the record. Id.; Allen v. Heckler, 749 F.2d 577, 9 579 (9th Cir. 1984). The Court will not reverse an ALJ’s decision if the errors 10 committed by the ALJ were harmless. Molina, 674 F.3d at 1111 (citing Stout v.
11 Comm’r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 454 F.3d 1050, 1055–56 (9th Cir. 2006)). “[T]he burden 12 of showing that an error is harmful normally falls upon the party attacking the 13 agency’s determination.” Shinseki v. Sanders, 556 U.S. 396, 409 (2009).

14 ANALYSIS

15 A. The ALJ did not err in evaluating the medical opinion evidence

16 Plaintiff first contends the ALJ erred in ascribing reduced weight to the 17 opinions of Dr. John Arnold, Ph.D., Jennifer Brumley, a licensed social worker, and 18 Melody Bremis, ARNP. ECF No. 11 at 17–18. The Commissioner argues the ALJ’s 19 evaluation of these opinions was proper. ECF No. 12 at 14–19.

1 1. John Arnold, Ph.D.

2 For SSI appeal purposes, there are three types of physicians: “(1) those who 3 treat the claimant (treating physicians); (2) those who examine but do not treat the 4 claimant (examining physicians); and (3) those who neither examine nor treat the 5 claimant [but who review the claimant’s file] (non-examining physicians).” 6 Holohan v. Massanari, 246 F.3d 1195, 1201–02 (9th Cir. 2001) (alteration in 7 original) (quoting Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 830 (9th Cir. 1995)). Generally, a 8 treating physician’s opinion carries more weight than an examining physician’s, 9 and an examining physician’s opinion carries more weight than a non-examining 10 physician’s. Id. at 1202. “In addition, the regulations give more weight to opinions 11 that are explained than to those that are not . . . and to the opinions of specialists 12 concerning matters relating to their specialty over that of nonspecialists.” Id.
13 (internal citations omitted).

14 If a treating or examining physician’s opinion is uncontradicted, the ALJ may 15 reject it only by offering “clear and convincing reasons that are supported by 16 substantial evidence.” Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1216 (9th Cir. 2005). “If 17 a treating or examining doctor’s opinion is contradicted by another doctor’s 18 opinion, an ALJ may only reject it by providing specific and legitimate reasons that 19 are supported by substantial evidence.” Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216 (citing Lester, 81 20 F.3d at 830–31). But the ALJ need not accept the opinion of any physician,

1 including a treating physician, if that opinion is brief, conclusory and inadequately 2 supported by clinical findings.” Bray v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 554 F.3d 1219, 3 1228 (9th Cir. 2009).

4 The ALJ assigned little weight to Dr. Arnold’s opinions for several reasons, 5 including that those opinions were inconsistent with the longitudinal medical 6 record, which the ALJ noted Dr. Arnold had not reviewed prior to assessing Plaintiff 7 as “markedly” and “severely” limited in numerous areas. AR 25–26. Plaintiff argues 8 Dr. Arnold did, in fact, review Plaintiff’s prior medical records. ECF No. 13 at 5 9 (citing AR 592). But the record Plaintiff cites does not support that conclusion; 10 while it indicates Plaintiff told Dr. Arnold she was receiving mental health 11 treatment—and thus Dr. Arnold was aware of Plaintiff’s medical records—there is 12 no indication he in fact received or reviewed those records. See AR 592. As such, 13 the Court finds the ALJ was justified in assigning reduced weight to Dr. Arnold’s 14 opinions because they were not informed by review of the medical record, as Dr.
15 Toews’s opinions were. AR 25–26; see also Andrea S., v. Comm’r Soc. Sec. Admin., 16 Case. No. 3:19-CV-00465-AC, 2020 WL 2751887, at *5 (D. Or. May 27, 2020)
17 (citing Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228) (upholding decision of ALJ who assigned reduced 18 weight to opinions of reviewing physicians who did not review all available medical 19 records).

20 The ALJ also properly identified incongruities between Dr. Arnold’s

1 opinions and the objective medical evidence. Plaintiff is correct that where a 2 claimant alleges disability due to mental illness, an ALJ errs by identifying “a few 3 isolated instances of improvement over a period of months or years and treat[ing] 4 them as a basis for concluding a claimant is capable of working.” Garrison v.
5 Colvin, 759 F.3d 995, 1017 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Holohan v. Massanari, 246 F.3d 6 1195, 1205 (9th Cir. 2001)). But while the ALJ’s discussion of Dr. Arnold’s 7 opinions only identified one example of inconsistency between those opinions and 8 the medical record—a “normal” test of Plaintiff’s cognition from near the time of 9 Plaintiff’s application, see AR 26 (citing AR 306)—his written decision cataloged 10 many such instances throughout the record of Plaintiff exhibiting mental capacity 11 incompatible with the many “marked” and “severe” limitations Dr. Arnold 12 assessed. See AR 20–26 (citing, e.g., AR 427, 484–87; 499; 566). To be sure, the 13 medical record also contained reports of Plaintiff experiencing the severe symptoms 14 she alleged, but the Court cannot conclude the ALJ unfairly found Dr. Arnold’s 15 opinions inconsistent with the longitudinal medical record as a whole.

16 Because Dr. Arnold’s opinions were at odds with those of Dr. Toews, the 17 ALJ was only required to provide “specific and legitimate reasons that are 18 supported by substantial evidence.” Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216 (citing Lester, 81 F.3d 19 at 830–31). Having reviewed the ALJ’s decision and the medical record before her, 20 the Court finds Dr. Arnold’s lack of familiarity with Plaintiff’s medical records and

1 inconsistency between his assessment of Plaintiff's limitations and the longitudinal 2 medical record were specific and legitimate reasons, supported by substantial 3 evidence, to assign those opinions reduced weight. The Court will not, therefore, 4 disturb the ALJ's decision on this ground.

5 2. Jennifer Brumley, MSW, LSW

6 Plaintiff next contends the ALJ erred in assigning reduced weight to the 7 opinions of licensed social worker Jennifer Brumley. ECF No. 11 at 17–18. An ALJ 8 may consider “other source” testimony from medical sources such as nurse 9 practitioners, physicians’ assistants, and counselors. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1513(d)(1).³ 10 Testimony from “other sources” regarding a claimant’s symptoms or how an 11 impairment affects his or her ability to work is competent evidence and cannot be 12 disregarded without comment. See Dodrill v. Shalala, 12 F.3d 915, 918–19 (9th 13 Cir. 1993) (discussing friend and family lay witnesses, also listed as other sources 14 under 20 C.F.R. § 404.1513(d)). If an ALJ chooses to discount testimony of such a 15 witness, the ALJ must provide “reasons that are germane to each witness” and may 16 not simply categorically discredit the testimony. Id. at 919.

17 The ALJ assigned little weight to Ms. Brumley’s opinions both because they 18 were undated, preventing the ALJ from assessing whether Brumley’s opinions

19 20 ³ The Court applies the regulations as written at the time Plaintiff’s application for benefits was filed.

1 reflected Plaintiff's condition during the period of alleged disability, and because 2 they were based exclusively on Plaintiff's self-reports, rather than any objective 3 clinical findings. AR 26 (citing AR 264–65 (“[Plaintiff] reports difficulties with 4 memory as well as daily events that trigger PTSD.”); see also Valentine, 574 F.3d 5 685, 694 (9th Cir. 2009) (heavy reliance on claimant's self-reports is germane 6 reason to reject “other source” opinions where ALJ has also discounted claimant's 7 symptom testimony). Having reviewed Brumley's two-page report—which 8 consisted of short, conclusory, handwritten statements, the Court finds the ALJ 9 identified germane reasons to assign her opinions reduced weight. See Bray, 554 10 F.3d at 1228 (ALJ may reject opinions of physician were based on inadequate 11 clinical findings).

12 3. Melody Bremis, ARNP

13 The ALJ also assigned little weight to the opinions of Nurse Practitioner 14 Melody Bremis because they lacked specificity and were formulated a year prior to 15 the application date. AR 26. As set out above, because Ms. Bremis's was an “other 16 source” opinion, the ALJ was only required to provide “germane” reasons to assign 17 it reduced weight. Dodrill, 12 F.3d at 918–19. Having reviewed the record, the 18 Court concludes the ALJ identified germane reasons to reject Ms. Bremis's 19 20

1 opinions.⁴ See Carmickle v. Comm’r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 533 F.3d 1155, 1165 (9th 2 Cir. 2008) (citing Fair, 885 F.2d 597, 600 (9th Cir. 1989) (“Medical opinions that 3 predate the alleged onset of disability are of limited relevance.”); Bray, 554 F.3d at 4 1228 (ALJ may reject physician’s conclusory opinions).

5 B. The ALJ did not err in discounting Plaintiff’s subjective symptom 6 testimony

7 Plaintiff also contends the ALJ erred in discounting Plaintiff’s own subjective 8 symptom testimony. ECF No. 11 at 14–16. Where a claimant presents objective 9 medical evidence of impairments that could reasonably produce the symptoms 10 complained of, an ALJ may reject the claimant’s testimony about the severity of her 11 symptoms only for “specific, clear and convincing reasons.” Burrell v. Colvin, 775 12 F.3d 1133, 1137 (9th Cir. 2014). The ALJ’s findings must be sufficient “to permit 13 the court to conclude that the ALJ did not arbitrarily discredit claimant’s 14 testimony.” Tommasetti v. Astrue, 533 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2008). General 15 findings are insufficient. Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 834 (9th Cir. 1995). In 16 evaluating the claimant’s credibility, the “ALJ may weigh inconsistencies between 17 the claimant’s testimony and his or her conduct, daily activities, and work record,

18
19 ⁴ Accordingly, Plaintiff’s argument that the credibility of Ms. Brumley’s opinions 20 was enhanced by their consistency with Nurse Practitioner Bremis’s is insufficient to overturn the ALJ’s decision. See ECF No. 11 at 17.

1 among other factors.” Bray, 554 F.3d at 1227. The Court may not second guess the 2 ALJ’s credibility findings that are supported by substantial evidence. Tommasetti, 3 533 F.3d at 1039.

4 The ALJ rejected Plaintiff’s symptom testimony for several reasons. First, 5 the ALJ noted Plaintiff’s limited work history since approximately a decade prior 6 to the alleged onset date detracted from her credibility in testifying that her 7 disability prevented her from securing gainful employment. See AR 21.
8 Specifically, the ALJ noted that Plaintiff had not worked since 2006 and, when 9 asked during the hearing to explain this, first testified it was because she had no 10 “job history,” did not “work well with others,” and was prohibited from working 11 “with children or the elderly or anybody disabled,” which the ALJ attributed to 12 Plaintiff’s criminal history. See AR 21, 47. During an interview with Dr. Arnold, 13 Plaintiff stated she quit her most recent job because her “supervisor said choose 14 between job and family,” and told Dr. Arnold she had been fired from other jobs 15 because she “can’t get along with others,” is not “a team player” and doesn’t “get 16 along with other people.” AR 592. When asked during the hearing to elaborate on 17 her difficulty cooperating with co-workers, Plaintiff explained she “get[s] upset 18 with people behind her” and “usually end[ed] up having a lot of stress at work, and 19 [] can’t think straight.” AR 47. Plaintiff testified that as a result, she “usually 20 end[ed] up screwing something up and just having problems.” Id. When pressed

1 further, Plaintiff also attributed her lack of recent employment to her alleged 2 symptoms. See AR 48–54.

3 The ALJ also concluded Plaintiff’s lack of gainful employment for ten years 4 preceding the amended onset date could be explained by her self-described role as 5 “homemaker.” AR 21 (citing AR 308, 359, 433, 498, 533). During the hearing, 6 Plaintiff testified her spouse was pursuing a technical credential and working, and 7 that she was responsible for four children, ranging in age from five to fifteen at the 8 application date, who were living in the home. AR 42–46. Plaintiff explained her 9 duties at home included household chores such as doing laundry and cooking.
10 AR 53. The ALJ thus concluded Plaintiff was “quite functional and busy.”⁵

11 An ALJ may assign reduced weight to a claimant’s testimony that her 12 symptoms limit her ability to work where that testimony is undermined by 13 significant periods of unemployment attributable to causes other than the alleged 14 disability. See Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 959 (9th Cir. 2002) (upholding 15

16 ⁵ The Court also concludes the ALJ’s finding that Plaintiff’s activities of daily living 17 were inconsistent with the nature and severity of her alleged symptoms was 18 supported by the record. While “[t]he Social Security Act does not require that 19 claimants be utterly incapacitated to be eligible for benefits,” Fair v. Bowen, 885 20 F.2d 597, 603 (9th Cir. 1989), an ALJ is justified in discrediting a claimant’s symptom testimony where it is incompatible with her self-described daily activities. See Bray, 554 F.3d at 1227. Having reviewed the record, the Court cannot find the ALJ’s conclusion—that Plaintiff’s activities of daily living was at odds with the severity of the symptoms she alleged—was arbitrary or baseless.

1 ALJ's decision attributing little weight to symptom testimony of claimant whose 2 "work history was spotty, at best, with years of unemployment between jobs, even 3 before she claimed disability"); Marsh v. Colvin, 792 F.3d 1170, 1173 n.2 (9th 4 Cir. 2015); cf. Gonzales v. Berryhill, 261 F. Supp. 3d 1085, 1097 (D. Or. 2017) 5 (reversing ALJ's decision discrediting symptom testimony where bases for 6 claimant's past terminations were consistent with alleged symptoms).

7 Having reviewed the record, the Court finds the ALJ articulated clear and 8 convincing reasons to attribute reduced weight to Plaintiff's subjective symptom 9 testimony. Plaintiff did not maintain gainful employment for nearly a decade prior 10 to first claiming disability, and the ALJ reasonably concluded this gap in Plaintiff's 11 employment was attributable both to her self-professed inability to cooperatively 12 work with others and her substantial responsibilities at home. The Court finds these 13 were clear and convincing reasons, supported by substantial evidence, to reject 14 Plaintiff's symptom testimony, and therefore declines to overturn the ALJ's 15 decision on this basis.

16 CONCLUSION

17 For the reasons set forth above, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

18 1. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 11, is DENIED.

19 2. The Commissioner's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 12, is 20 GRANTED.

1 3. The Clerk's Office shall ENTER JUDGMENT in favor of 2 DEFENDANT and thereafter CLOSE the file.

3 IT IS SO ORDERED. The Clerk's Office is directed to enter this Order and 4 provide copies to all counsel.

5 DATED this 2nd day of June 2020.
